Making and Marking Memory: widening perspectives on Far East captivity

Liverpool, Saturday 10 – Sunday 11, 2023

IMPORTANT NOTES

Planning to put on this next conference has had its challenges! Thanks to all those who registered their interest; while responses were encouragingly high, with hopefully many registering shortly, we cannot predict the likely take-up.

As seasoned delegates will know, RFHG run the conferences on a shoestring; we are all volunteers and rely on delegate fees to underpin all but the venue costs. We are indebted to the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine for its continuing support.

While we are all now learning to live with COVID-19, and with a further vaccine rollout this autumn, we still cannot be certain that something may arise to restrict plans once again. Therefore, in the event of another COVID-19 threat next year we must comply with the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine's safeguarding guidelines within School during periods of rising or high infection rates (such as mask wearing and social distancing).

FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED

This means that initially we have limited guaranteed places to the first 55 people for whom we receive completed delegate forms, together with deposits. When guest speakers and the RFHG team are added, we reach the school's maximum number of persons allowed in the lecture theatre under the 2-metre social distancing rules.

However, we sincerely hope that by Spring next year we will be able to invite another 30 or more from the waiting list to join the conference. We appreciate your understanding. We will inform all those who register if they have a confirmed place or are on the waiting list.

NB previous delegates have priority booking (from 1 September) and newcomers (from 1 October). If we do not reach our break-even by 1 November, regrettably we will have to cancel the conference.
